

How do Children deal with Personal Loss?

Brief Snapshot:

- 1. Children will express their personal sadness, intermittently, over a long period of time.
- 2. Children tend to mimic the grieving patterns demonstrated by their surviving parents or family members.
- 3. Children will ask a multitude of questions. As each question and subsequent answer reveal themselves, their grieving encompasses the new information received, or their new understanding of events.